WILLIAM PENN'S LANDING.

Anniversary of the Day Celebrated at Chester and Philadelphia—Representation of the Ancient Scenes—Great Crowds.

SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.

Chester, Pa., Oct. 23.—[illegible]

[illegible] JOHN G. WHITTIER.

The poem referred to is rather a boyish effort, a eulogy of William Penn, and contrasts his method of dealing with the Indians with that pursued by others. It was written in 1825.

Poems were read by Mrs. Sarah L. Clark Oberge and Mary P. Fawkes of Chester county, and Henry S. Kent of Philadelphia.

Addresses were also made by Alfred H. Love, president of the Pennsylvania peace society, James J. Lewis, of Philadelphia, and others.

Services in all the churches of this city yesterday were in keeping with the occasion. To-morrow will be the bicentennial of the landing of Penn, which will be fittingly celebrated.

THE CITY THRONGED WITH PEOPLE.

Chester, Pa., Oct. 23.—The bi-centennial celebration to-day was a grand success. Nearly every building was resplendent with flags, bunting and various appropriate decorations, giving the city a holiday appearance. At least 200,000 visitors were present. The streets were so thronged as to be impassable. Among the guests were a large number of distinguished gentlemen, including Governor Hoyt and Attorney General Lear, the mayors of cities in this state, Delaware and New Jersey, and a large number of representative gentlemen of Philadelphia and New York. The day was ushered in by the bells in the city, each bell in the city tolling 200 strokes.

ACCOUNT OF THE EXERCISES.

The exercises proper of the day began at 9:30 A. M., with a representation of the landing of William Penn and his party from an old-fashioned yawl boat [illegible]

MEETING IN PHILADELPHIA.

Philadelphia, Oct. 23.—The universal peace union and the Pennsylvania peace society held a commemoration service in Franklin institute this morning in honor of the landing of William Penn and the founding of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania. The meeting was presided over by Mayor King. The opening prayer was made by James Speare, who invoked a blessing on peace and its advocates. Letters of regret were read from De Lesseps, Herbert Spencer, S. G. Lay, president of the Seneca nation of New York Indians, and others.

THE CEREMONIES IN PHILADELPHIA.

Philadelphia, Oct. 23.—To-night thousands of Germans will assemble in front of Independence hall and sing appropriate songs. At midnight the state house bell will announce the landing day, preparations for the observation of which have been made on an elaborate scale. Wednesday, trades day, will be given over to a parade of the industries of the city and state. In the evening there will be a street representation of scenes in the life and career of Penn. The reception at the Academy of Music closes the ceremonies of the day. Thursday is Knights Templar day and Friday military day. Seven thousand Templars and 2000 troops are expected to parade. Regattas, chorus singing, meeting of bicycle clubs and unveiling of statues make up the other exercises.

TELEGRAPHIC SPARKS.

The Corrupt Democratic Contingent.

[Philadelphia North American, Rep.]

The republican party has indeed to contend with evil enough if all that is said about it by its enemies, hereditary or otherwise, is true. If it be true, for instance, that the hopes of the party for success in several republican states are based on the aid of "the corrupt democratic contingent," we cannot think of anything to be added to complete the humiliation of the party.

NewspaperARCHIVE®

The Daily Oregonian.
TUESDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 24, 1882.

IN THE INTEREST OF COMMERCE.

The pilot bill prepared by Judge Deady passed both houses of the legislature and has been signed by the governor. It is now a law, and will go into effect just so soon as the commission which it authorizes can be appointed and organized. By this new law one thorough system is substituted for a number of contradictory laws. In the stead of a jumble of conflicting regulations upon whose construction lawyers widely differ, and which practical men are wholly unable to understand, we have a plain, consistent system, with provisions based upon the conditions of the special situation, and of whose meaning there can be no misconstruction or doubt. A commission to be composed of three members, all of whom must be practical and experienced seamen, is given power to regulate and manage the business of pilotage and towage, themselves to be governed by careful and exact rules designed to prevent abuse of their power. One of these commissioners is to be appointed by the governor, another by the Portland board of trade and another by the Astoria chamber of commerce. This plan of appointment lifts pilotage and towage government out of politics, and will make the board a purely business body. The new law divorces the properly distinct businesses of pilotage and towage, and guards against abuses which always grow out of such alliances. It reduces rates about twenty-five per cent. from the present schedule. To prevent extortionate rates and swindling practices, which have been easy under the old system, pilots will be compelled under heavy penalties to report their collections to the board monthly, and the board in turn will be required to report these to the governor annually. Secrecy under this rule will be impossible, and the data obtained by it will be valuable for future arrangement of rates. In all respects the bill seems adapted to the best service of commerce. It was fraughted with that single purpose in view, and it affords special privileges to no person or company. The governor has not yet appointed a member of the board, but will do so soon. The board of trade and chamber of commerce have already taken steps in the matter, and a special meeting of the former for the purpose of naming a man will be held Thursday evening. Capt. N. B. Ingersoll is spoken of for the position and will undoubtedly be selected as Portland's representative.

A LAND COMMUNISM.

There are, as is well known, very many persons in the new anti-monopoly party who entertain solialistic or communistic opinions. To such an extent is this the case that very many who are in entire sympathy with the object indicated by the name of the organization find themselves debarred from acting with it in any way lest they may assist in the dissemination of doctrines they know to be dangerous, or to put forward for prominent positions men whose aims, if carried out, would unhinge society. These doctrines are borrowed chiefly from the speculation of foreign writers. One of the leading objects of the communist element of the party is a scheme which they call the "nationalization of land." It is defended by an argument based on a wild dogma of certain philosophers, among whom is John Stuart Mill. That distinguished man denounced what he called the "unearned increment" of land as something outrageous, and asserted that it ought to be confiscated by the state as "untrue and unphilosophical." Now the "unearned increment" spoken of by Mr. Mill is simply the increase in value. This dogma is what the anti-monopolist section referred to have elevated into an article of their political faith, and they justify its adoption by the assertion that it is not right to allow a man to buy a tract of land to-day for, say $2000, and be able to sell it in a few years to come for $4000, without having improved it or done anything at all but wait for population to grow up in its neighborhood.

This is a dangerous argument to allow to go unexposed, for it is one very likely to appeal to the sympathies of the ignorant or the half educated. Fortunately, it is easy to show that it is unsound. If a communist be asked whether it be not true that land sometimes depreciates in value, and whether in that case the state should not recompense its owner for unavoidable loss if it is to confiscate his unearned increment, he has his answer ready, and will say that he proposes to make the land national property, recompensing individual owners. In this he unwittingly moves himself only from one horn of a dilemma to the other, for if the state is to compensate it must do so with money, and if money is property, why not subject it to the same rule as land? Why proceed in one way with one class of property and not another? By way of illustrating this point, let it be supposed that the country goes to war, or decides to undertake some great national improvement, in either case needing money. Its bonds go upon the market and are bought at 80 cents on the dollar. In a few years these bonds touch par. Is not this "unearned increment"? Yet the communist will not say that he would vest all money in the state. But why not? In truth the whole of this communistic so-called political economy is on a par with the scheme of some madman. It is a craze, nothing more, and only needs exposure to disgust men with it.

TILE DRAINAGE.

Little experiment has yet been made with tile drainage in Oregon; but excellent results have attended such experiments as have been made. In some of the older states tile drainage is enlisting the attention of farmers to an extraordinary extent. An Illinois paper tells us that there are not less than five hundred tile factories in that state; yet only a few years ago such an establishment was a novelty, and there was little demand for its product. No great while ago tiling was an experiment of doubtful practicability, and was thought at best only adapted to low or boggy lands. Now it is a demonstrated success, and is found as beneficial on high and rolling lands as on low and level fields. We are told that the past very wet season in Illinois and adjacent states has directed attention more closely than ever to the advantages of underdraining. While the level lands, in most instances have produced only ten to twenty-five bushels of corn per acre, well underdrained lands adjacent to them have produced from fifty to seventy-five bushels. The advantage has, therefore, been equal to 100 per cent., or an actual difference of $20 to $35 per acre in a single season. The difference is not so great in ordinary and favorable seasons; but experience in the upper Mississippi valley states has thoroughly demonstrated the fact that every season the lands well underdrained produce better crops than those that are not, and that underdraining them with tiling enhances their productiveness and consequently their real value, from 25 to 100 per cent. These facts being acknowledged, therefore it is not surprising that every intelligent and enterprising farmer should desire to underdrain his land. The tile factories, though multiplying rapidly, are unable to keep their supply up to the demand. Here is a suggestion for the lands of the western parts of Oregon and Washington, where the rainfall is excessive, where water, standing in low places, makes it impossible for wheat to live through the winter, or where spring work could be performed much earlier, with certainty of getting good crops, if the lands were properly underdrained.

The country newspapers very generally regret the defeat of the registry law. They do not appreciate the solicitude of Portland for the "country districts" in this matter.

THE IDEAL IN OUR HISTORY.

It is a very common fashion to assert that the quality of patriotism in these times bears no comparison with that of the times of our ancestors. It is assumed that public spirit is now wanting, our methods and motives are low, petty and mean, and that in the days of those who founded the political and civil institutions which we inherit and enjoy there was universal prevalence of patriotism of the most high-minded and selfless kind. But any close examination of our earlier national history, says a writer, of the period of the revolution or that of the confederation, shows this to be a very complete delusion. As such it challenges the attention of distinguished foreign writers, who, on study of American history, wonder that our people, through a curious kind of modesty, do themselves so great injustice by the extravagant manner in which they idealize their past.

We find this noted in the new volumes of Lecky's "History of England in the Eighteenth Century," which deal chiefly with the revolt of the colonies and the achievement of American independence. They furnish a record, which no American writer has as yet presented, of the low tone of public feeling, of the want of patriotic ardor, of the petty motives, trifling contentions, and small ambitions almost universally prevalent in the days of our revolutionary ancestors; of the selfish struggles of public men for precedence and gain, and of their exaltation of private wishes and resentments over unselfish considerations for the public good. Such is a record, attested as this is, may well produce disenchantment. Painfully does it suggest that the patriotism of those times would better be admired from a distance and cherished as an ideal than be subjected to close examination.

The writer named above says: "It has almost become a commonplace that the great nation which in our own day has shown such an admirable combination of courage, devotion and humanity in its gigantic civil war, and which since that time, has so signally falsified the predictions of its enemies and put to shame all the nations of Europe by its unparalleled efforts in paying off its national debt, is of a far lower moral type than its ancestors at the time of the war of independence. This belief appears to me essentially false. The nobility and beauty of the character of Washington can indeed hardly be surpassed; several of the other leaders of the revolution were men of ability and public spirit, and few armies have ever shown a nobler self-devotion than that which remained with Washington through the dreary winter at Valley Forge. But the army that bore those sufferings was a very small one, and the general aspect of the American people during the contest was far from heroic or sublime. The future destinies and greatness of the English race must necessarily rest mainly with the mighty nation which has arisen beyond the Atlantic, and that nation may well afford to admit that its attitude during the brief period of enmity to England has been very unduly extolled."

The truth is there is now more public spirit, and public morals save a higher tone, than at any former time in our history. And this is as true of the English as of the American people. Even a superficial examination of the history of the two nations will afford proof enough of this fact. But the English, with a better grasp of their history than we have of ours, do not extol the past at the expense of the present to the extent we do. They view their history in better perspective; their heroic age is far back, and they have a clearer view of historical proportions than we shall for some time yet be able to obtain.

THE NEW FISHERY LAW.

The law regulating salmon fisheries on the Columbia river, passed by the legislature, is now in the hands of the governor and will without doubt receive his approval. Its most important provision is one prohibiting fishing on the bar or in its immediate vicinity. The bill provides that it shall be unlawful to fish with gill nets, of any description whatsoever, on or in the vicinity of the Columbia river bar, at any point below or westward of a line drawn from the flagstaff at Fort Stevens to the top of Scarborough Hill and that any person or persons who shall fish with gill nets or drag-gill nets, on or in the vicinity of the Columbia river bar, below or westward of this limit, shall be punished by fine of not less than $100 nor more than $250 for the first offense, and for each subsequent offense not less than $250 nor more than $500, and be imprisoned in the county jail for a term of not less than three months nor more than one year. The purpose of this prohibition is to protect the bar from the damaging operations of fishermen. They have for the past two or three years pushed out into the teeth of the breakers dragging their deep-draught nets over the shoals, regardless of the fact that such dragging works great injury to the ship channel.

The other provisions of the bill are designed to protect the salmon interest. Hereafter it will be unlawful to take salmon in the Columbia river or its tributaries during March, August and September, and during the "close times" in April, May, June and July—such close times to be between 6 o'clock in the afternoon on Saturday and 6 o'clock on Sunday. The size of mesh for gill nets is the same as under the old law—four and one-eighth inches square. It is also made unlawful to put sawdust and mill refuse into the Columbia river or its tributaries. Severe penalties are prescribed for violation of these various provisions. A section of the original bill prohibiting the taking of fish by trap, wheel or seine was not included in the enactment.

In a report to the chief engineer of the army, some months ago, Lt. T. W. Symons gave the results of an examination of the Upper Columbia river and the country in its vicinity. The report has been issued from the government printing office in handsome form, illustrated by a series of maps covering almost the whole of the upper Columbia. It embraces a description of the river and the lands in its vicinity, and shows the economical relations of the Columbia to the surrounding country. To this is added a historical and geological account of the river, with a chapter giving a clear idea of the fertile and extensive Great Plain, composing the northern portion of the interior basin of the Columbia. The work is of very considerable value.

How completely the Union Pacific was built by money supplied by the government and through the sale of first mortgage bonds is shown by the fact that from the inception of the road in 1861 to 1882 there has been but about $100,000 in money paid in upon the $50,000,000 of the capital stock. Yet the whole is used for the personal aggrandizement of a few men, the same as if they had bought and paid for it.

The rapidity with which our national debt is being reduced calls forth expressions of wonder from the civilized world. Nothing similar is known in history; and if the good work goes on as it has been doing, the time is not far distant when the nation will be rid of the burden. In September the debt was reduced $14,805,918, and for the last three months $44,701,237, this being at the rate of $180,000,000 annually.

A Timely Warning.

The New York Times has the following on the salmon fishing industry:

The news of salmon fishing that at present comes from the northwestern corner of the country is of a very humorous "weather" and lively business. In a very short time the news will be of infinitesimal cat... decaying business, and stringent protective laws after most of the fish have been killed. This will be the inevitable consequence of the method of salmon fishing now practiced on the Columbia and other rivers of the northwest. There is no sport in it, not even the exceptionable eagerness of a poor fisherman with a family to support, who has come just down in taking fish however he can get them. On the Columbia river a corporation builds a dam and puts an immense wheel in the sluice gate, where all the water must run through. This wheel has paddles like troughs that "scoop" the fish out of the water and deposit them in troughs, whence they slide into a hopper. The slain fish are cooked and canned, and the proprietors lead an alive, are their own back into the stream. This is not fishing, but butchery; for in the teeming waters of the Columbia one of the wheels throws out enough fish in the course of an afternoon to keep the neighboring canning factory busy for a week. In Scotland, whence most of our delicious salmon formerly came, the fish are largely taken with nets, and the net fishing season has just closed. The season opened well, but it has not been a productive one. During the first three months 3,808 boxes of 150 pounds each were received at Billingsgate, against 3112 boxes during the same period in 1881. The yield began to fall off about the middle of June, and at the end of August the total supply at Billingsgate was 185" boxes less than last year. The best season was that of 1871, when over 33,000 boxes were sent up to London. The Tay and the Tweed are, of course, the great Scottish salmon fishing rivers. The fishing rental of the Tay is now about £18,300, or nearly £400 lower than in 1881. When fishing privileges can be made so valuable it is like throwing so many government notes into the fire to allow fishing to be done as it is now done on the Columbia river.

Industrial Notes.

The value of silk goods importations at New York last month was $3,915,639. In September, 1881, it was $3,441,928; in 1880, $4,330,315; in 1879, $4,141,043; in 1875, $2,684,147.

Local manufacturers are almost without exception pressed to supply the demands made upon them for their goods. Our iron-workers are especially busy, running nights to fill urgent orders.

There were imported into the United States last year 216,788 gallons of olive oil, valued at $330,128, and paying a duty of $1 per gallon. Of this it is said that one-fourth was cotton seed oil exported from the United States.

A company of Iowa capitalists, with $300,000 capital, are at Birmingham, Ala., for the purpose of building another iron blast furnace. This makes a total of $3,050,000 invested in the manufacture of pig iron in that district.

The coinage of all the United States mints in September was, of gold, 404,864 pieces, $5,571,640 value; silver, 2,006,400 pieces, $2,288,185 value; and base, 6,348,900 pieces, $107,427 value. Total, 9,322,364 pieces, $8,009,252 value.

The establishment of two or three clothing factories in East Portland during the past three months has added materially to the strength of local manufacturers, and will be the means of retaining a considerable sum heretofore sent out of the state.

Contracts made recently by Clyde shipbuilders show that the present price of iron vessels may be given as follows: First-class iron screw steamers £29 per ton; second class, £14 15s; cargo-carrying screw steamers, £22 2s 6d; first-class sailing vessels, £17; second class, £14 7s 6d; third class, £12 17s 6d.

The Toronto glucose factory opened last week, when a party of twenty were entertained at a champagne luncheon on the top of the chimney at a height of 150 feet from the ground. There was not a very strong demand, however, for "fizz." The building is eight stories high, and with the plant cost $300,000.

The prospects of the new tobacco crop are very flattering. Reports from various sections of Virginia and North Carolina state that the quality and color are quite equal to those of the crop of 1881, "if not superior." The crop in Virginia is placed at 90 per cent of the average, and that of North Carolina at a full average.

The mackerel receipts at Gloucester, Mass. last month were nearly 20,000 barrels less than for August and but little over half as large as for the corresponding months in 1880 and 1881. Cod fish were in about the same quantity as in August, and there was an increase of about half a million pounds of halibut, owing to the arrival of the Greenland fleet.

Hops are so scarce in New York that the owner of a fine lot need not doubt his ability to secure $1 a pound for them, whereas he could not have obtained more than one fourth as much six months ago. The world's average consumption of hops is estimated at 365,000 bales annually, the weight of a bale being 185 pounds. It is believed that the crop of 1882 is more than 200,000 bales short, and hence the extremely high price, although speculation has affected the market somewhat. It is probable that hop yards will multiply so rapidly that two years hence the hop market will be as flat as it was several years ago. The high price of any product stimulates production to a degree which soon makes it unprofitable. The price of meat is now so high that the farmers are increasing their stock of cattle and sheep as rapidly as possible, and less than five years hence the market will be unprofitable. Unfortunately, few of the farmers look ahead far enough to see these things.

Act for the More Effectual Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Be it enacted by the legislative assembly of the state of Oregon:

SECTION 1. Whoever overdrives, overloads, drives when overloaded, overworks, tortures, torments, deprives of necessary sustenance, cruelly beats, mutilates or cruelly kills, or causes or procures to be so overdriven, overloaded, driven when overloaded, overworked, tortured, tormented, deprived of necessary sustenance, cruelly beaten, mutilated or cruelly killed any animal; and whoever having the charge or custody of any animal, either as owner or otherwise, inflicts unnecessary cruelty upon the same, shall ... or every such offense be punished by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding sixty days, or by fine not exceeding one hundred dollars, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

SEC. 2. Every owner, possessor or person having the charge or custody of any animal, who cruelly drives or works the same when unfit for labor or cruelly abandons the same, or who carries the same, or causes the same to be carried in or upon any vehicle or otherwise, in an unnecessarily cruel, inhuman manner, or knowingly or willfully authorizes or permits the same to be subjected to unnecessary torture, suffering or cruelty of any kind, shall be punished for each and every offense in the manner provided for in section one of this act.

SEC. 3. No person or company which carries or transports horses, cattle, sheep or hogs, shall confine or permit such animals to be confined in or upon any boat, barge, railroad car or other vehicle of transportation for a longer period than twenty-eight consecutive hours without unloading the same for rest, for a period of at least five consecutive hours, unless prevented from so doing by storm or accidental causes. In estimating such confinement, the time during which the said animals have been confined without such rest upon connecting roads, barges, cars or vehicles of transportation from which they are received, shall be included—it being the intent of this act to prohibit their continuous confinement beyond the period of twenty-eight hours, except upon contingencies hereinbefore stated.

Animals so unloaded shall be properly fed and watered, during such rest by the owner or owners or person or persons in whose custody they are, or in case of his or their default in so doing, then by the party or company which transports the same, at the expense of said owner or owners, and said party or company shall in such case have a lien upon such animals for food, care and custody so furnished, and shall not be liable for any detention of such animals as authorized by this act.

Any company, owner or custodian of such animals who shall fail to comply with the provisions of this section shall for each and every such offense be liable for, and forfeit and pay a penalty of not less than fifty dollars nor more than one hundred dollars; provided, however, that when animals shall be carried in or upon boats or cars in which they can be and are provided with proper food, water, space and opportunities for rest, the foregoing provision in regard to their being unloaded shall not apply.

SEC. 4. Any person or persons found violating the provisions of this act may be arrested and held without warrant in the same manner as in case of persons found breaking the peace, and making the arrest, with or without warrant, shall use reasonable diligence to give notice thereof to the owner or owners of the animals or animals found in the charge of the person or persons arrested and shall properly care and provide for such animal or animals until the owner or owners or such animal or animals or duly authorized agent of the same shall take charge of the same; provided, that such owner or owners or agent shall claim and take charge of the same within sixty days from the date of said notice, and the person or persons making such arrest shall have a lien upon such animal or animals for the expense of such care and provisions.

SEC. 5. When complaint is made on oath or affirmation, before any magistrate who is authorized to issue warrants in criminal cases, that the complainant believes and has reasonable cause to believe that the law in relation to cruelty to animals has been or is being violated in, at or near any particular building, place or location, such magistrate shall, if satisfied that there is reasonable cause for such belief, issue a search warrant authorizing any sheriff, deputy sheriff, constable or police officer, to search such building, place or locality.

SEC. 6. In this act the word "animal" or "animals" shall be held to include all domestic brute creatures, and the words "owner," "owners," "person," "persons," and "whoever" shall be held to include corporations as well as individuals, and the knowledge and acts of agents of, and persons employed by corporations in regard to the treatment of animals transported, owned or employed by or in the custody of such corporation or corporations, shall be held to be the acts and knowledge of such corporation or corporations.

SEC. 7. It shall be the duty of any sheriff, deputy sheriff, constable or police officer to arrest any violator or violators of the provisions of this act, and to prosecute any violator or violators of its provisions, which shall come to his knowledge or not ... and all fines and forfeitures ... shall be collected for violations of this act or any of its provisions, shall be paid into the county treasury of the county in which such fines or forfeitures or forfeitures shall have been collected, and placed to the credit of the common school fund of such county.

SEC. 8. Justices of the peace and police judges shall have concurrent jurisdiction over all offenses committed under this act.

SEC. 9. All acts and parts of acts in conflict with this act are hereby repealed.

"DON'T KNOW HALF THEIR VALUE."

"They cured me of ague, biliousness and kidney complaint, as recommended. I had half a bottle left which I used for my two little girls, who the doctors and neighbors said could not be cured. I would have lost both of them one night if I had not given them Hop Bitters. They did them so much good I continued their use until they were cured. That is why I say you do not know half the value of Hop Bitters, and do not recommend them high enough."—B., Rochester, N. Y. See other column.—American Rural Home.

THE ALBINA HOMESTEAD is situated next to Albina, and between and contiguous to the extension of Fourth street, East Portland and the Vancouver road. All the lots in Blocks 26, 27, 28, 29 and 30, are 50x120 feet, with twenty-foot alleys through the blocks. All the other lots are 50x100 feet. The streets are wide and have all been cleared, while the lots are high and level and can be very easily cleared.

We now offer for sale for a short time a limited number of these Lots and Blocks at reasonable prices and on easy terms. THE ALBINA HOMESTEAD is unquestionably the best field for investment and the most desirable place for location now in the market. Its close proximity to the cities of Portland and East Portland, and to the heavy improvements now being carried out by the various companies under the direction of Mr. Villard—the Dry Docks, Elevators, Machine Shops and other works of these companies—its nearness also to the Albina Ferry, together with the proposed Multnomah Railway from I street Ferry, in E. Portland, and from Albina will make this property very accessible from all parts of these cities. These advantages will necessarily attract a large population, and in the meantime make this the most popular and valuable suburban property in this vicinity, while in the near future it must furnish homes for the rapidly increasing population of Albina, and then its value will be at least five times what we now offer it for. The property and full information given to all who may apply to
